Volunteer Program FY 13 Annual Update

Making a difference
Volunteers play an invaluable role in helping the Corps of Engineers meet our recreation and environmental stewardship program goals. Each year, they give their time, expertise and resources to serve the more than 370 million visitors who enjoy Corps managed lands and waters.

During the 2013 fiscal year 51,368 total volunteers donated 1,593,452 hours – the equivalent of 905 full time employees. The value of their labor was $35,279,027. With more than 3,200 employees in the natural resources management community, volunteer work equals approximately 28 percent of our workforce. More than 60 cooperating associations and many more national and local partners also provide volunteers to help support the work of the Corps.

Where does someone find out about volunteer opportunities?
Corps personnel can recruit their own volunteers or get help from the Volunteer Clearinghouse, a national information center at www.corpslakes.us/volunteer/ and post their opportunities on www.volunteer.gov. There is also toll free number: 800-VOL-TEER (800-865-8337) for people interested in volunteering at Corps sites.

Who Are Our Volunteers?
Our volunteers are people who want to give back to their communities and are interested in the work of the Corps natural resource management program. They are parents who want to bring their family out for a day of service together, retirees willing to share a wealth of knowledge and experience, outdoor enthusiasts wishing to create and maintain their favorite recreation opportunities, and concerned citizens of all ages interested in making meaningful contributions. Whether it is an environmental ethic, a love of parks, or enthusiasm for the outdoors, like-minded volunteers gather to share their passions while contributing to the good of their communities.

What Do Our Volunteers Do?
Volunteers perform a variety of tasks. Some work full-time; others give a few hours a week or month; and still others help during special events. We match our volunteers' talents and interests to work to be done, which varies from site to site, in order to achieve our natural resource goals. Volunteers serve as park and campground hosts, staff visitor centers, lead tours and educational activities, clean shorelines, restore fish and wildlife habitat, manage cultural resources, perform administrative duties, work with computers and other technical equipment, maintain Corps facilities, and much more.

Although volunteers' skills, knowledge, and time are priceless, the Corps uses the figure calculated annually by the Independent Sector, the leadership forum for charities, foundations and corporate giving programs, to put a monetary value on volunteer contributions. For FY 13, an hour of volunteer time was worth $22.14. Volunteers complete tasks that would otherwise go undone.

National Public Lands Day 2013

Each year, on the last Saturday in September, Corps volunteers come out in droves to participate in National Public Lands Day. This year, more than 16,000 volunteers helped remove 12,400 pounds of trash, cleaned 210 miles of roadway and 1,650 miles of shoreline, built/maintained 135 miles of trails, improved 680 acres of habitat, and planted 835 trees and shrubs.

Volunteer Annual Day Use Pass

In 2013, the Corps established a volunteer pass program to support and recognize volunteers who have served the Corps in an exemplary way. Volunteers who have served a minimum of 100 hours at Corps managed areas are eligible to receive a waiver of all day use fees via an Annual Day Use Pass. The main goal of the program is to increase visitation to Corps parks by enticing volunteers to visit new places, bring friends and family, and continue to explore and enjoy Corps recreation areas.
