

About Us

Agents of Discovery™ is an educational tech platform empowering you to create your own augmented reality mobile games. Site-specific games inspire curiosity and engagement, which studies show help kids retain information while having fun and being active and safe.

Agents of Discovery's disruptive technology combines a popular trend (video games) and common problems (a lack of physical activity and time spent in nature) to create a compelling solution by mixing "green time" with "screen time."

The easy to use, web-based Mission Maker allows you to create, edit, and manage your own location-based game. With the click of a button, you can publish your immersive customized game to the Play and App Stores. You can change content to coincide with the seasons or special events.

91% of youth play computer and video games regularly¹

"Agents of Discovery is an amazing opportunity for youth of today to literally plug into nature. It's so great to see kids and their family out exploring the park together and sharing those outdoor experiences. It's moments like that which can help spark that first bit of excitement and appreciation towards the outdoors and get people moving toward becoming stewards of the land."
