

Donna and Sid Lindsey have had major impacts on the United States Army Corps of Engineers, at Stanislaus River Parks in the five years that they have volunteered. Accumulatively, Sid and Donna have volunteered over 10,898 hours of their time. They have exceeded the expectations and standards of volunteer park hosts. Sid and Donna often receive praise from visitors regarding their pleasant and outgoing personalities and willingness to provide visitors with a clean environment to enjoy. They are extremely dependable and maintain positive interactions with project visitors as well as Park Rangers both in the recreation areas and inside the information center. In 2020, Sid played an instrumental role in a water rescue by assisting a Park Ranger in the retrieval of multiple individuals who were stranded in the cold, fast moving Stanislaus River. Donna and Sid's participation in the natural resource management of Stanislaus' recreation areas will have lasting positive effects on the environment and ecosystem for years to come.
