Does Your Life Jacket Fit You Properly?

Life jackets come in sizes to fit babies through larger adults. They are intended to keep you afloat in lakes, rivers, and other bodies of water.

Worn correctly, they work!

Check the label for U.S. Coast Guard approval, weight limit, and activity types.

> All buckles and zipper, if it has one, should be fastened.

Infant and some child life jackets have a strap between the legs. Be sure to fasten that for extra protection.

Damaged life jackets should be discarded and replaced. Check often for mold, broken parts, holes, tears, and buoyancy.

US Army Corps of Engineers_®

