Lives and property are safer today along the Clearwater River because of flood protection created by Dworshak Dam. It is the highest straight-axis concrete gravity dam in North America at 717 feet. The dam created a 54 mile long reservoir surrounded by lush, forested mountains that awaits your discovery with boating, hiking, wildlife watching, picnicking, camping, hunting and fishing.

Sitting on the Pend Oreille River 90 miles upstream from where it enters the mighty Columbia River, is Albeni Falls Dam. Waters of the Pend Oreille stretch 65 miles through a glacially carved, U-shaped valley that separates three lofty mountain ranges: the Cabinets, the Selkirks and the Coeur d'Alene's. Lake Pend Oreille is one of the largest and deepest natural lakes in the western United States, plunging to a depth of 1,237 feet at its deepest. A wide variety of recreation opportunities and experiences await you.
